

ALPHA SHIFT

WEBSITE WORKING BOOK

Agency Handoff Edition • Pages 1–5 • Source copy and visual directions

Shift Thinking. Shape Success.

How to use this book

This is the consolidated website source of truth for the agency handoff. Locked material is preserved; Page 3 reflects the sketchnote-card + crisp-overlay architecture agreed after v1.1.

- LOCKED — agreed copy/concept; change only if deliberately reopened.
- OPEN — one remaining execution point: the final Navigate Uncertainty sketchnote.
- AGENCY EXPLORATION — treatment can change while the underlying idea is protected.

Website principles

- Human, intelligent, visual, thoughtful, premium and approachable.
- Conversational rather than corporate.
- Founder-led sketchnotes are part of the thinking, not decoration.
- Predominantly black and white with subtle grey; Alpha Shift orange used sparingly and meaningfully.
- No generic corporate stock photography.
- No synergy / transform / disruptive / holistic jargon.
- Minimal animation and uncluttered pages.
- No cartoonish or children's-coaching feel.
- Routine content edits should not require agency dependence.

LOCKED — copy and Sketchnotes 1 & 2; Sketchnote 3 optional

TREATMENT NOTE — The line breaks below are for copy review, not a prescription for the website's vertical rhythm. On Home, typography should be part of the visual language — using scale, weight, italics, emphasis and flowing paragraph treatment so the words and sketchnotes are composed together across desktop, tablet and mobile. Test the copy on screen before deciding it is too long.

ALPHA SHIFT

Shift Thinking. Shape Success.

Something on your mind?

Something you're thinking about.

A problem you're trying to solve.

A conversation you're not quite sure how to have.

Or perhaps just a feeling that something needs to move.

You don't necessarily know what it is.

And that's okay.

Sometimes, you already know enough.

Yet there's still a missing piece.

Something you can't quite put your finger on.

It could be a conversation.

A different perspective.

A small decision.

Or simply seeing something you thought you knew in a different way.

SKETCHNOTE 1 — LOCKED

A person crosses a river using boulders. The black boulders represent what is already known. Three differently coloured boulders represent possible missing pieces: a conversation, a different perspective, or a small decision. A crocodile watches from the water. Meaning: another step is needed, and there is more than one possible next move.

SKETCH / REVIEW PROMPT

Preserve the simplicity and humour. Do the coloured options read as possibilities without needing labels? Keep the crocodile a small detail rather than the story.

Maybe it starts with a better question.

Or a clearer observation.

Perhaps you see a possibility you hadn't considered.

Perhaps you decide to do something differently.

And that's where the shift begins.

SKETCHNOTE 2 — LOCKED

A person is thinking with a thought bubble. The thought becomes a light bulb. The person then runs holding the bulb. Meaning: Thought → possibility/insight → action. The shift is not complete at the "aha"; something is done with it.

Make the shift.

Not everything needs a new plan.

Sometimes, it needs a new way of looking at the old one.

A thought becomes a possibility.

A possibility becomes a decision.

A decision becomes action.

Small shifts can change what happens next.

SKETCHNOTE 3 — OPTIONAL

No visual is required merely to fill a placeholder. The first two already create a coherent progression. Leave this open for page-flow / agency judgement.

That's what Alpha Shift is about.

Creating the space to explore.

To think differently.

To see more clearly.

To find what matters.

And then to do something about it.

How we work

It might begin with a conversation.

It might be a workshop that gets people thinking and doing.

It might be a deeper journey with a leader, a team or an organisation.

Or it might be something we haven't put into a box yet.

We start where you are.

I'm Chetan.

I've spent my career moving between banking, fintech, marketing, education and business.

Different industries. Different challenges. Different people.

One thing has stayed constant:

Good answers don't always come from knowing more.

Sometimes they come from looking differently.

That's the thinking behind Alpha Shift.

Meet Chetan →

Ready to explore?

You don't need to have it figured out.

Bring the question.

Bring the challenge.

Bring the half-formed thought.

We'll start there.

Let's explore →

PAGE 2 — THINK • SHOW UP • STAY

LOCKED — copy and tangled-cable visual concept

Hmm...

What if there's another way of looking at this?

Maybe there's something you want to handle differently.

What brings you here?

A tough meeting.

An interview.

A pitch that matters.

A conversation you've been putting off.

A decision about what's next.

A business or team that needs something to shift.

SHOW UP.

Take charge of it.

You don't need to have it all figured out.

We don't start with a programme.

We start with you.

What's happening?

What's getting in the way?

What would make a difference?

We shape the work around that.

STAY.

Knowing what to do is one thing.

Sticking with it is another.

Give the shift time to stick.

So, what could we work on together?

→ Page 3

VISUAL ANCHOR — LOCKED

Tangled cable → progressively untangled cable → lit bulb. The bulb stays essentially the same. The tangle changes. The visual represents clarity emerging as you work through something over time. Do not make the final cable unnaturally perfect: clearer and more workable, not "fixed". No human figure required.

PAGE 3 — PROGRAMMES

LOCKED CONTENT — revised treatment: seven sketchnote-led cards + crisp overlays

Page 3 should feel like discovery, not a service catalogue. The preferred direction is seven visual programme cards. Each sketchnote is the visual face of its card. The detailed copy appears only after the visitor chooses to take a closer look.

STANDARD INTERACTION

CARD = programme name + one-line promise + dominant sketchnote + "Take a closer look →".

OVERLAY = short recognition line + a little more meaning + Try This + Choose the depth: 60 mins — Open it up · 180 mins — Work it through · 360 mins — Make it usable. + "Let's explore →".

The sketchnote is not repeated inside the overlay.

AGENCY / FALLBACK NOTE

Preferred: sketchnote-led cards. The exact browsing treatment — deck, carousel, spread, stack, swipe or something else — is for the agency to solve. If the card format compromises any sketchnote, protect the sketchnote and use a looser tile/visual-section treatment while retaining browse → choose → crisp overlay → Let's explore.

01 — THINK BETTER

LOCKED — card + overlay copy

CARD — what appears on Page 3

THINK BETTER

See possibilities. Solve better problems.

SKETCHNOTE

Person asking “What else?” with visibly different thought paths / ways of approaching the situation. Keep it simple enough to read at card size.

Take a closer look →

SKETCH / REVIEW PROMPT

Start with one person and “What else?”. Keep the paths visibly different but not busy.

OVERLAY — opens after the tap

THINK BETTER

Keep coming back to the same answer? Or wondering if there's another way?

More ways to approach a real situation.

Beyond the obvious.

Sideways.

Logically.

Through better questions.

Not more thinking. More ways to think.

TRY THIS

Got an answer?

Ask “What else?”

Then ask it again.

Choose the depth: 60 mins — Open it up · 180 mins — Work it through · 360 mins — Make it usable.

Let's explore →

02 — COMMUNICATE CONFIDENTLY

LOCKED — card + overlay copy

CARD — what appears on Page 3

COMMUNICATE CONFIDENTLY

Be clear. Be heard. Have the conversations that matter.

SKETCHNOTE

Same person in three phases: mixed symbols / clutter → unnecessary symbols crossed out in red → clean speech bubble with aligned letters/numbers. The progression is clutter → selection → clarity.

Take a closer look →

SKETCH / REVIEW PROMPT

Keep the same person across all three phases. Use red only to cross out unnecessary noise. Rehearsal/role-play belongs in the actual programme, not the overlay.

OVERLAY — opens after the tap

COMMUNICATE CONFIDENTLY

Got something important to say — but not quite sure how to say it?

Know what matters.

Find the words.

Say what you mean — clearly and confidently.

Clarity before confidence.

TRY THIS

Before an important conversation, ask:

What do I really want them to understand?

Start there.

Choose the depth: 60 mins — Open it up · 180 mins — Work it through · 360 mins — Make it usable.

Let's explore →

03 — STORYTELLING

LOCKED — card + overlay copy

CARD — what appears on Page 3

STORYTELLING

Turn ideas into stories people remember.

SKETCHNOTE

Loose two-part visual. “Keep an eye on the target.” → eye + target. “The sun sets between the mountains.” → the listener visualises the scene. Core idea: Words → Picture → Memory.

Take a closer look →

SKETCH / REVIEW PROMPT

Keep the examples loose rather than boxed. The spoken words should visibly trigger the mental picture.

OVERLAY — opens after the tap

STORYTELLING

Have something worth sharing — and want people to remember it?

Find the story in what you want to say.

Give it shape.

Use words that help people see it.

Make the point worth remembering.

TRY THIS

Think of something you need to explain.

Instead of asking:

“What do I want to say?”

Ask:

“What do I want them to see?”

Choose the depth: 60 mins — Open it up · 180 mins — Work it through · 360 mins — Make it usable.

Let’s explore →

04 — OWNING THE ROLE

LOCKED — card + overlay copy

CARD — what appears on Page 3

OWNING THE ROLE

Step up. Take charge. Create movement.

SKETCHNOTE

Two moments with the same person. First: the person steps up. Second: the same person is helped higher by someone already on the podium. The assisting person is Alpha Shift orange. Support, not rescue.

Take a closer look →

SKETCH / REVIEW PROMPT

Does the first moment read as ownership? Does the second read as support rather than rescue? Keep orange only on the assisting figure.

OVERLAY — opens after the tap

OWNING THE ROLE

Stepping into more responsibility — without necessarily feeling completely ready?

Step into the responsibility you've been given — or chosen to take on.

Understand what the role now asks of you.

Use what you already bring.

You don't have to have it all figured out to step up.

TRY THIS

Ask:

What does this role need from me now?

And:

What am I already bringing to it?

Choose the depth: 60 mins — Open it up · 180 mins — Work it through · 360 mins — Make it usable.

Let's explore →

05 — PEAK PERFORMANCE

LOCKED — card + overlay copy

CARD — what appears on Page 3

PEAK PERFORMANCE

Understand your mind. Access its power.

SKETCHNOTE

Performance dials / controls. The point is not maximum on every dial, but the right combination for the moment — the state that enables best performance.

Take a closer look →

SKETCH / REVIEW PROMPT

Explore only a few dials such as Focus, Energy, State, Attention or Pressure. Avoid a technical-dashboard feel. Show optimum rather than maximum.

OVERLAY — opens after the tap

PEAK PERFORMANCE

Ever had days when everything just seems to click — and others when it doesn't?

Your best performance isn't always about trying harder.

Notice what brings out your best.

Understand the state you're in.

Learn how to find your way back to it.

Your best is already something you've experienced.

TRY THIS

Think of a time when you were really good at what you were doing.

What was different about you in that moment?

Choose the depth: 60 mins — Open it up · 180 mins — Work it through · 360 mins — Make it usable.

Let's explore →

06 — NAVIGATE UNCERTAINTY

LOCKED — card + overlay copy

CARD — what appears on Page 3

NAVIGATE UNCERTAINTY

Not sweating over the future.

SKETCHNOTE

OPEN VISUAL. The drawing should communicate: "I don't know exactly what's ahead, but I can still decide what to do next." Avoid Home's stepping-stone/boulder territory. Final concept to be tested for immediate clarity at card size, especially on mobile.

Take a closer look →

CONTENT NOTE

Public-facing copy deliberately avoids the word “anxiety” so the programme is not positioned as psychology/clinical treatment.

OVERLAY — opens after the tap

NAVIGATE UNCERTAINTY

Spending too much time worrying about what might happen next?

We can't know everything that's coming.

But we can notice what's happening now.

Separate what we can influence from what we can't.

And find a useful next step.

You don't need to know what happens next to decide what you do next.

TRY THIS

Ask yourself:

What do I know?

What can I influence?

What can I do next?

Choose the depth: 60 mins — Open it up · 180 mins — Work it through · 360 mins — Make it usable.

Let's explore →

07 — PERSONAL BRANDING

LOCKED — card + overlay copy

CARD — what appears on Page 3

PERSONAL BRANDING

Show up with clarity. Be remembered for what matters.

SKETCHNOTE

A few footsteps lead towards a podium. A person stands on the podium in a spotlight and speaks through a megaphone. Speech / connection / digital-platform symbols emerge. Keep the journey visible without making it corporate.

Take a closer look →

SKETCH / REVIEW PROMPT

Allow qualities, skills, interests, experiences, achievements and unexpected facets — not only résumé material. Personal brand is not only the professional self.

OVERLAY — opens after the tap

PERSONAL BRANDING

Do people know what you bring — and what you'd like to be known for?

There's probably more to you than the part people usually see.

Things you're good at.

Things you've done.

Things you know about.

Things you care about.

And perhaps a few things people wouldn't expect.

It's all part of you.

The question is how you let people discover it — in person and online.

TRY THIS

What are three things about you that are worth knowing?

Are you giving people a chance to discover them?

Choose the depth: 60 mins — Open it up · 180 mins — Work it through · 360 mins — Make it usable.

Let's explore →

PAGE 4 — CHETAN

LOCKED — copy; photography/artefact treatment; quiet credentials strip

I've always been curious.

About people.

About what makes us tick.

Why we respond differently to the same situation.

Why something brings out the best in us one day — and gets in our way the next.

And what we might be capable of that we haven't quite discovered yet.

That curiosity has travelled with me.

Through banking, fintech, marketing, education and business.

Different roles.

Different situations.

Lots of different people.

Experience taught me a lot.

It also gave me more questions.

Some of those questions turned inward.

What makes me tick?

Why do I respond the way I do?

What comes naturally to me?

What gets in my way?

What else might I be capable of?

That introspection led to more learning.

I explored techniques, frameworks and ways of thinking that helped me understand some of those questions better — and gave me different ways to work with others too.

I'm still learning. I hope I always will be.

Because there's often more there than we realise.

We tend to notice what we're missing.

What if we also looked at what's already there?

The qualities we have.

The things we do naturally.

The experiences that have shaped us.

The capabilities we may not be using fully yet.

Sometimes, someone else even sees something in us before we see it ourselves.

My role isn't to tell you who you should become.

It's to help you explore what makes you tick, recognise what you already bring — and discover what else you might do with it.

And then there are the things I try...

Photography took me across genres and, along the way, brought me some international recognition.

A weekend eating street food around New Delhi with three colleagues became a coffee-table book — four copies, one for each of us.

And once, mostly because it was well outside my comfort zone, I tried stand-up comedy.

One performance.

It went rather well. 😊

Different things. Same curiosity.

Look closer.

Ask questions.

Try something.

Learn.

And occasionally, surprise yourself.

That's probably the simplest way to explain Alpha Shift.

It grew from experience.

From curiosity.

From continuing to learn.

And from believing that sometimes the most useful thing we can do is look again — at the situation, at the possibilities, and at ourselves.

Let's explore →

VISUAL TREATMENT — LOCKED DIRECTION

No sketchnote required. Shift deliberately from drawn ideas to the real person behind them. Use a curated collection of portraits/candid shots, stand-up image, award-winning photography and genre examples, and the New Delhi coffee-table book. Avoid the conventional founder portrait + biography layout and avoid a trophy-cabinet feel. Agency may explore a carousel/editorial gallery/visual trail. Parked creative idea: photographs clipped to a line like prints hung to dry after processing — explore only if elegant and contemporary, especially on mobile.

A little of the formal stuff

CREDENTIALS STRIP — VISUALLY QUIET

Master's in Management Studies — Goa University

Advanced Programme in Digital Marketing Strategy — IIM Calcutta

NLP Certification — ABNLP

Verify exact formal nomenclature before publication. Keep secondary to the narrative and photography; no wall of certificates or institutional-logo parade.

Something on your mind?

You don't need to have it all figured out.

Maybe it's something you want to work through.

Something you'd like to do differently.

An idea you want to explore.

Or perhaps you're not quite sure yet.

That's okay.

Start with a conversation.

Tell me a little about what's on your mind.

That's it.

No elaborate intake form.

No need to choose a programme before we've spoken.

We'll start where you are.

PAGE 5 TREATMENT NOTES

This page must work for someone who has followed the whole site and for someone who arrives directly. Keep it light but provide enough context to start. Two easy routes: tell us what's on your mind, or book a conversation. Email and LinkedIn remain available. Do not require a programme selection. The website gets people to the conversation; from there, Alpha Shift takes over. The journey should reward someone who follows it, but never require them to.
